

Parkdean: What's New for 2013

- Enjoy Britain at its best throughout the new year with Parkdean

Following a £12 million investment, award winning holiday park operator, Parkdean has a number of exciting new developments for the New Year, offering people even more choice and flexibility for their British breaks in 2013. The company has recently launched its 2013 brochure, packed full of new accommodation, more entertainment for all the family and longer opening periods for many of the parks. With 24 holiday parks located in Cornwall, Dorset, Devon, Wales, Hampshire, Norfolk and Scotland there is something for everyone.

Pet friendly holidays:

Families travelling with pets now have more choice of where to take their furry friends in 2013. Holywell Bay Holiday Park in beautiful Cornwall is now dog friendly so holidaymakers heading to the South West coast needn't worry about leaving their precious pooches in kennels. The park, tucked away in the Ellenglaze Valley and surrounded by sand dunes provides the perfect spot for walks with your canine companions. With the addition of Holywell Bay, 22 of Parkdean's 24 Holiday Parks are now completely pet friendly.

New accommodation:

Parkdean's holiday homes are so roomy and luxurious, they provide customers a real home away from home! Parkdean has introduced new holiday homes across 22 holiday parks. Holidaymakers can enjoy brand new ultra-modern caravans that are extra-wide and feature central lounges with a bedroom and bathroom at either end, double-glazing, and central heating throughout. What's more, there are now even more non-smoking units across all 24 holiday parks.

More kids entertainment:

Parkdean understands that kids love to make friends whilst they're on holiday, so now ALL six holiday parks in Scotland, as well as 18 around England and Wales, boast Tot Stars Kids Club to keep pre-school age children entertained - in addition to their Star Landers club and Freestyle club for teenagers. What's more, holidaymakers can now enjoy Parkdean's sparkling live Showtime Evening Entertainment at a further two locations: Cherry Tree in Norfolk and Southernness Holiday Park in Dumfries, Scotland will keep the whole family happy!
